Risk Management – two words for a reason

Waterton Technology Centre, Waterton Industrial Estate, Bridgend CF31 3WT
9.30am–12.30pm Thursday 22nd May 2025

This Risk Management half day course will explore ISO 31000 and the reasons why a number of ISO management system standards refer to it with regard to risk.

In particular the course will cover:

- What is risk ... and according to whom?
- Mistakes in managing risk – more common than we think
- Risk leadership
- The fundamentals of authentic risk management
- The risk management principles and risk management process of ISO 31000
- The overlaps with ISO 45001
- Is there a way your organisation could improve?

Delegates who want a certificate will be provided access to the PCR Global's Learning Zone and will need to answer questions from the day's delivery. If they answer correctly, they will be able to download their own certificate.

The Alliance consists of South Wales Branch IOSH; Wales Branch IIRSM, Cardiff and East Wales Occupational Safety Group, South and West Wales Safety Group, as well as South Wales Construction Safety Group.

PCR Global Limited offers professional training and consultancy, delivering risk management solutions to support companies that wish to develop, maintain or improve their organisational resilience.

The South Wales Safety Groups Alliance, as a service to our members is offering this course free of charge. However, if a delegate has booked and doesn't attend, they will be billed for the cost of the course at £25 per delegate.
